

Steven Gorup

Director | steven@hughesmarino.com

Steven Gorup is director at Hughes Marino, a global corporate real estate advisory firm that exclusively represents tenants and buyers. Steven is a leader in several key divisions at Hughes Marino, including Program, Project and Construction Management, Portfolio Lease Administration & Advisory, Planning + Design, Information Technology and Facilities. Steven works closely with each team to ensure the highest level of service possible to both our clients and team members alike.

Steven was previously a senior vice president in Hughes Marino's Program, Project, and Construction Management team. Steven has extensive knowledge and experience in managing some of the most complicated construction and design projects. His expertise lies in managing a large team of consultants, contract administration, understanding design documents, project scheduling, estimating, bidding, and understanding and resolving field issues. Steven applies his project management expertise to his day-to-day roles in each of the divisions he is a part of today.

Steven is a LEED Accredited Professional for Building Design and Construction, which is essential for green-building technology implementation. He also holds the Lean Six Sigma Green Belt Certificate, a strategy designed to improve quality while simultaneously eliminating cost and administrative excess.

Steven earned a degree in construction science and management from Kansas State University. Steven enjoys hiking, running and traveling with his wife, Star, in his free time.

Education

- Kansas State University, B.S. in construction science and management

Professional Activities

- U.S. Green Building Council
- LEED Accredited Professional

Civic and Charitable Activities

- Walk Now for Autism Speaks

Honors and Awards

- Emerging Generation Award Finalist - San Diego Business Journal