

Rider Stoglin

Vice President | rider@hughesmarino.com

Rider Stoglin is a vice president with Hughes Marino, a global corporate real estate advisory firm that exclusively represents tenants and buyers. Based in Hughes Marino's Denver office, Rider helps commercial users navigate each of their own unique situations as current or future occupiers of real estate.

Prior to joining Hughes Marino, Rider was with Newmark, where he spent time on both the tenant representation and institutional capital markets teams and was an integral part of the evaluation of over $1 billion dollars of commercial real estate assets across all product types in the Denver area. Through his work in the capital markets, Rider developed a unique perspective on how landlords view commercial transactions and he utilizes this knowledge to strategically negotiate transactions on behalf of tenants and business leaders to reach the best outcomes for his clients.

Rider grew up in Littleton, Colorado and now lives near the downtown Littleton area. A Colorado native, Rider enjoys the wide variety of activities the outdoors has to offer, especially skiing and camping with family and friends.
