

Hughes Marino Named a 2011 San Diego Healthiest Companies Finalist

Friday, September 9, 2011 | San Diego Business Journal | Jason Hughes

The San Diego Business Journal announced the finalists for its second annual San Diego Healthiest Companies 2011, acknowledging “this dynamic group of local organizations that has made the health of their workforce a priority.”

The owners and partners of Hughes Marino are actively involved in promoting the health and wellness of every staff member. The company offers one of the most comprehensive healthcare plans available. In 2011 Hughes Marino began its own “Individual Betterment Program” that supports better health – mentally, physically, personally and professionally. Its active staff includes several marathoners, triathletes, cyclists and surfers. The company has supported them with time off, sponsorships and an in-house fitness facility available to all staff. Nutrition is another staple of the wellness efforts with a full gourmet kitchen available for preparing healthy meals. With Hughes Marino’s commitment to employees and their families, this new real estate and construction management company has formed a dedicated staff that is making a mark in the industry.
