

Amelia St. John

Vice President | amelia@hughesmarino.com

Amelia St. John is a vice president with Hughes Marino, an industry-leading commercial real estate firm that exclusively represents tenants and buyers. Amelia focuses her attention on advising a wide variety of tenants in the Denver market and enjoys helping them identify creative solutions to accommodate their goals, company culture and their efforts to retain and recruit vibrant talent.

Prior to Hughes Marino, Amelia worked at Colliers International for four years where she assisted tenants across different industries through their real estate process, from site selection to completion. In addition, she oversaw lease administration for one of the largest cybersecurity firms in the world. Amelia takes great pride in having a strong work ethic, and in leveraging her market intel to support her clients in navigating their real estate needs.

Originally from North Dakota, Amelia moved to Denver in 2016 for a more active lifestyle. When she's not working, she enjoys skiing, hiking, camping, traveling and spending quality time with her family and friends.
